

I think that video mail should be reimbursed. What is the difference between a hearing person getting a voice mail or a deaf person getting a video mail? None. Today's video technology is limited to some degree on the user side so the provider has to develop a way to deliver a video mail message, and the providers should be reimbursed plus profit to develop these systems.